SPECIAL OFFERING!

Crisis Negotiation (Texas State University)

12.0 CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION – 12.2 Investigation Responsibilities

Monday, June 7 through Friday, June 10, 2010
(FIVE DAYS) 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Instructor: Wayman C. Mullins, Texas State University

This five-day course is designed for law enforcement officers to learn and master the basics of crisis negotiation. Course content includes the historical context of police negotiations; differences in various types of negotiable situations including hostage situations and barricaded subject situations; the importance of using time as a tool; how to respond to hostage taker demands; other principles of demand management; basics of personality typologies of hostage takers and barricaded subjects. Students will also learn how negotiating terms are structured, equipment issues concerning the team, the utilization of outside agencies during a situation, and differences between police and correctional negotiation situations. Through practical exercises, students will be able to demonstrate the various issues surrounding the use of communications in a negotiable situation, including active listening skills and persuasion/suggestion/compliance/influence techniques. Attendees should be patrol officers or detectives who will act as negotiators during actual crisis situations. Selection should be based on the department's ability to identify personnel who are enthusiastic and highly motivated to become crisis negotiators.
